DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mangum (US 5,397,326) in view of Clarke (US 3,763,860).

Regarding claim 2, Mangum discloses a suture thread shifting device (Figure 1) wherein a front edge of the device has a sectional configuration suitable for allowing the front edge to reach a region in an arthroscopic or endoscopic viewing field even when an incision portion of a surface layer of a human body is small. The device is capable of having a suture thread engage the front edge, and in doing so, is capable of shifting the suture thread from a position on the operating surgeon's side to a position remote from the operating surgeon. The surfaces of the bisected portions are smoothly curved. The front edge is bisected. In Figures 1 and 2, it appears that the lengths of the two tips may be different from one another, but as Applicant has noted, the figures are not assumed to be drawn to scale and Mangum does not discuss this matter in the text of the specification.

Clarke discloses a needle 46 (Figure 12) designed to carry a suture. Said needle comprises bisected distal end such that a suture may be "held on needle 49 by being wedged into a crotch formed between the needle proper and a protuberance 73 thereon.” (Column 5, Lines 60-63) Said bisected end comprises bisected portions of differing lengths (Figure 12). Furthermore, the crotch disclosed in Clarke is constructed so as to be able to catch or disengage the suture thread by rotating the device. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the apparatus of Mangum by providing the crotch of Clarke wherein the bisected portions are of different lengths since said configuration was a known alternative and its substitution would not have produced unexpected results.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 2 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
